

Graduate Nursing Licensure Requirements by State

Prior to enrolling in any Rider University (Rider) program, prospective or current students should review state licensure requirements as a nurse. Completion from a Rider University program does not necessarily guarantee eligibility for state licensure; or receipt of a license.

The below information provides an indication of whether Rider's program satisfies a state's legal requirements, does not satisfy a state's licensure requirements, or if Rider University has not yet made a determination whether a program meets a state's licensure requirements.

As a student, or prospective student, you should determine whether the program satisfies your state's licensure requirements prior to enrollment in Rider University. In addition, for states Rider has not yet determined whether a program meets their requirements, please contact the appropriate state agency directly.

For a listing of each state's agency contact information, please review this list of state agency contact information which is maintained by the National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreement \(NC-SARA\).

Rider University's family nurse practitioner (FNP) and adult-gerontology primary care nurse practitioner (AGPCNP) concentrations prepare students to sit for the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC) and American Academy of Nurse Practitioners Certification Board (AANPCB).

Rider University's adult-gerontology acute care nurse practitioner (AGACNP) concentration prepares students to sit for the American Association of Critical Care Nurses (AACN) ACNPC-AG certification and the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC).

Rider University's psychiatric-mental health nurse practitioner (PMHNP) concentration prepares students to sit for the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC).
